INTRODUCTION8

FACTUAL BACKGROUND.....9

ARGUMENT11

 A. The Subpoena Was Properly Issued Under the Authority of a New York Court that Had Personal Jurisdiction Over the Daily Kos.11

 B. DowneastDem Cannot Relitigate Issues Resolved in New York.16

 C. False Statements that Mr. Kennedy “joined neo-Nazis” at a Protest in Berlin
 Organized by the German “AfD party” and “neo-Nazi NPD party” Are Defamatory Statements of Fact.19

 D. The Doctrine of Opinion Based on Disclosed Fact Is Inapplicable Here.22

 E. Mr. Kennedy Met the Prima Facie Burden Required for the California
 Subpoena under Both New York and California Law.24

 1. Mr. Kennedy Established that DowneastDem’s Statements are Defamatory.25

 2. The Court Should Not Weigh the Evidence on a Pre-action Petition.27

 F. The Court Should Strike DowneastDem’s Improper and Untimely August 10
 Filings.....29

 G. DowneastDem is Not Entitled to Attorney’s Fees32

1 FACTUAL BACKGROUND

2 On August 29, 2020, a blogger using the pseudonym “DowneastDem” posted statements about 3 Robert F. Kennedy, Jr. on the Daily Kos website. DowneastDem stated that Mr. Kennedy had joined neo-4 Nazis and spoke at a right-wing protest in Berlin organized by German neo-Nazi political groups. These 5 statements were false: at the time, Mr. Kennedy was giving a speech decrying neo-Nazism at a wholly 6 different congregation, organized by a different group, known as Querdenken (whose name means “lateral 7 thinking”).

8 Mr. Kennedy asked the Daily Kos and DowneastDem to take down the defamatory post, but they 9 refused. Left with few options, Mr. Kennedy filed a petition for pre-action disclosure from the Daily Kos 10 to obtain DowneastDem’s identity, in order to bring a lawsuit through which he could prove that the 11 blogger’s statements were false. (Pet. Ex. A, ¶ 1.) The Daily Kos opposed Mr. Kennedy’s petition, 12 asserting DowneastDem’s First Amendment rights and raising other objections. (Wenner Decl. ¶ 6.)
13 DowneastDem knew of the New York litigation and even coordinated with the Daily Kos concerning a 14 proposed settlement that would have mooted the petition. (Wenner Decl. ¶¶ 7-8.)

15 On April 16, 2021, the New York Supreme Court, Westchester County, held that Mr. Kennedy 16 succeeded in stating a prima facie case claim for defamation against DowneastDem, and approved the 17 issuance of a subpoena to identify the blogger (“April 16 Order”). (Pet. Ex. B.) The New York Court 18 reasoned that, under New York law, “a petition for pre-action discovery limited to obtaining the identity 19 of prospective defendants should be granted where the petitioner has alleged facts fairly indicating that he 20 or she has some cause of action.” (Id. at 3, quoting Konig v. WordPress.com (2013) 978 N.Y.S.2d 92, 93, 21 and citing Toal v. Staten Is. Univ. Hosp., (2002) 752 N.Y.S.2d 372, 374.) After reviewing arguments put 22 forward by both parties, the court stated that Mr. Kennedy’s “petition alleges sufficient facts, which fairly 23 indicate that he has a claim for defamation and is thus entitled to pre-action discovery limited to obtaining 24 the identity of prospective defendants.” (Id. at 3.) That decision is now on appeal in New York. (Wenner 25 Decl. ¶¶ 10, 12.)

26 On June 10, 2021, after the New York court authorized the issuance of the initial subpoena, Mr.
27 Kennedy personally served the Daily Kos with a subpoena for the production of business records. The 28 California subpoena, which mirrored the New York subpoena, was served under California’s interstate

1 reciprocal discovery rules and obligated the Daily Kos to respond by June 30, 2021. (Wenner Decl., Ex.
2 5 (complete subpoena).)

3 On Wednesday, June 23, 2021, after waiting approximately seven months to intervene in the 4 litigation, DowneastDem filed a petition to quash the California subpoena. (Wenner Decl. ¶ 14.) On filing, 5 the Deputy Clerk for the Alameda Superior Court set an August 16, 2021 hearing date for that petition.
6 Counsel for Mr. Kennedy and DowneastDem then met and conferred concerning a proposed briefing 7 schedule, but they were unable to reach agreement. DowneastDem’s counsel then wrote to court staff ex
8 parte, and the August 16 hearing was vacated and the petition was rescheduled to be heard months later 9 on November 1. DowneastDem subsequently filed an ex parte application to set a briefing schedule, 10 including a second motion to quash in addition to the earlier-filed petition, and to modify the page lengths 11 and briefing schedule in light of the new hearing date. (Wenner Decl., Ex. 5.) That application was 12 misleading in several key respects: it failed to inform the Court that Mr. Kennedy would be submitting an 13 opposition to the application; it wrongly suggested Mr. Kennedy’s counsel agreed with DowneastDem 14 that a lengthy and protracted briefing schedule was warranted, when in fact his counsel had repeatedly 15 stated that the hearing should be held on the originally scheduled August 16 date; and finally, it suggested 16 that DowneastDem had not already filed a motion to quash the subpoena, and that her motion would be 17 “forthcoming.” (Wenner Decl. ¶ 14; Wenner Decl., Exs. 6 (Jul. 9, 2021 opposition to ex parte application) 18 and 9 (Aug. 13, 2021 Respondent’s motion to strike).) In so doing, DowneastDem’s ex parte disguised a 19 request for permission to file a late memorandum in support of the earlier-filed petition to quash as a 20 modification of the briefing schedule on a second, future motion.

21 In any case, the Court granted DowneastDem’s ex parte application on July 7, 2021, and thus 22 DowneastDem was required to file the “memorandum and moving papers for motion to quash” on July 23 23. (Wenner Decl., Exs. 5 and 7.) That day came and went, with no filing by DowneastDem. Then, on 24 August 3—nearly a month after the Court granted her ex parte application—DowneastDem’s counsel 25 emailed Department 511 to request a copy of the Order adopting DowneastDem’s proposed order.
26 (Wenner Decl., Ex. 8.) DowneastDem’s counsel acknowledged that the order, “according to the Court’s 27 website, was signed on July 9 [sic], 2021 (the July 9 order), granting Petitioner DowneastDem’s ex parte
28 application, which was filed on July 2.” (Ibid.) Despite the clarity of the July 7 minute entry granting her

1 ex parte, DowneastDem’s counsel claimed that the Order could “impact decisions with respect to 2 finalizing those papers.” (Ibid.) Setting aside that the July 7 minute entry stated the ex parte was granted
3 and not that it was granted in part or with any modification, DowneastDem’s counsel did not explain why 4 they did not request a copy of it before August 3.

5 On August 10, 2021, DowneastDem filed a second motion to quash, this time with a supporting 6 memorandum and declarations. On August 13, 2021, Mr. Kennedy filed a motion to strike
7 DowneastDem’s August 10 filings—the second motion to quash—as untimely under the July 7 minute
8 order, which had granted DowneastDem’s ex parte application seeking a July 23 deadline. The Honorable 9 Victoria Kolakowski denied Mr. Kennedy’s motion to strike without prejudice to Mr. Kennedy raising the 10 argument in his opposition to DowneastDem’s petition and motion to quash.

11 On July 30, 2021, Mr. Kennedy filed a petition to compel the Daily Kos to respond to the subpoena.
12 That motion is fully-briefed, and a hearing was held on September 7 before Judge Kolakowski. Judge 13 Kolakowski upheld her tentative ruling adjourning the hearing from September 7 to November 1, over 14 Mr. Kennedy’s objection, to coincide with the hearing on DowneastDem’s petition and motion to quash.²

15 ARGUMENT

16 A. The Subpoena Was Properly Issued Under the Authority of a New York Court 17 that Had Personal Jurisdiction Over the Daily Kos.

18 Under the California Interstate and International Depositions and Discovery Act, a California 19 subpoena may be based on a foreign subpoena “issued under authority of a court of record of a foreign 20 jurisdiction.” (Code Civ. P. §§ 2029.200(b), 2029.350(a).) The California subpoena here was based on a 21 New York subpoena specifically issued under the authority of a New York court. Indeed, the New York 22 subpoena was signed by a New York judge. (Wenner Decl., Exs. 3 and 4.) DowneastDem cites section 23 2029.350 of the Code of Civil Procedure and contends that this Court may ignore the existence of that 24 subpoena because the New York court “did not have personal jurisdiction of Kos Media or 25

26 ² On September 13, 2021, Mr. Kennedy filed a preemptory challenge to Judge Kolakowski on the 27 basis of her disclosure the September 7 hearing that she has a user name on the Daily Kos and has 28 posted comments there since 2006, including many in direct response to posts by the owner of the Daily
Kos, who submitted multiple declarations in support of the Daily Kos’s opposition to Mr. Kennedy’s request for pre-action disclosure.

1 DowneastDem.” (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 15.) DowneastDem is wrong under both California and New 2 York law.

3 DowneastDem cites no California cases or any provision of the Act that provides this Court with 4 the authority to refuse to enforce a California subpoena on the basis that the underlying subpoena—
5 specifically authorized by and issued under the authority of a foreign court—is invalid.³ Section 2029.350, 6 the only California law DowneastDem cites, provides that a California attorney who “receives the original 7 or a true and correct copy of a foreign subpoena” may issue a subpoena under California law that 8 “incorporate[s] the terms used in the foreign subpoena.” (Code Civ. P. 2029.350(a), (b).) DowneastDem
9 does not contend that the California subpoena failed to incorporate the terms of the original New York 10 subpoena or that the New York subpoena is not authentic.

11 Even if this Court were to second-guess the New York court’s authority under New York law to 12 issue the subpoena, New York law clearly permitted the issuance of the subpoena. DowneastDem first 13 points to the Daily Kos’s location in California to argue that the New York court did not have personal 14 jurisdiction over the Daily Kos “to command it to produce documents.” (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 15.)
15 DowneastDem is wrong and misguided.

16 First, the Daily Kos voluntarily appeared before the New York court to contest the subpoena and 17 never asserted a lack of jurisdiction, thereby submitting to the court’s jurisdiction, separate and apart from 18 its contacts with New York. Not only did the Daily Kos answer and oppose the petition, the Daily Kos 19 also filed a counterclaim and issued its own merits discovery requests of Mr. Kennedy. (Wenner Decl. ¶ 20 6; Cadlerock Joint Venture, L.P. v. Kierstedt (N.Y.App.Div. 2014) 990 N.Y.S.2d 522, 524 [“A defendant 21 may waive the issue of lack of personal jurisdiction by appearing in an action, either formally or 22 informally, without raising the defense of lack of personal jurisdiction in an answer or pre-answer motion
23 to dismiss.”]; Taveras v. City of New York (N.Y.App.Div. 2013) 969 N.Y.S.2d 481, 485 [“When a 24 defendant participates in a lawsuit on the merits, he or she indicates an intention to submit to the court’s 25 jurisdiction over the action, and by appearing informally in this manner, the defendant confers in personam 26 jurisdiction on the court.”].)

27 _____
28 ³ Whether there are other reasons to quash the subpoena, such as DowneastDem’s First Amendment rights, discussed below, is a separate question.

1 Second, a petition for pre-action disclosure in New York is a discovery mechanism, and the Daily
2 Kos, though a respondent to the discovery motion, is a third-party witness to an underlying cause of action 3 that has not yet been filed. The case cited by DowneastDem, (Wiseman v. American Motors Sales Corp.
4 (N.Y. App. Div. 1984) 103 A.D.2d 230, 235,) simply acknowledged that an out-of-state witness may be 5 compelled to provide evidence pursuant to letters rogatory and the cooperation of the foreign court, which 6 is precisely what happened here when Mr. Kennedy utilized the interstate discovery act to domesticate the 7 subpoena in California. In other words, this Court is the enforcing court, and it is not necessary under 8 Wiseman for the issuing court to have personal jurisdiction over a third-party witness. Mr. Kennedy is not 9 seeking enforcement in New York.

10 DowneastDem next claims, inaccurately, that Mr. Kennedy’s New York petition “was predicated 11 on the theory that the Westchester County Supreme Court had personal jurisdiction over the alleged 12 defamer,” that is, DowneastDem. DowneastDem then argues that DowneastDem is not subject to personal 13 jurisdiction in New York. (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 15–16.) This argument is wrong because the New York 14 petition is not predicated—and need not be predicated—on the location of an anonymous internet 15 defendant, whose location may be anywhere in the world. The paragraph of the New York petition cited 16 by DowneastDem concerned the basis for subject-matter jurisdiction and venue in New York, not the 17 basis for personal jurisdiction over a non-party who is contemplated to be the subject of the future 18 proceeding. (Pet.’s Jul. 23 Pet. ¶ 4.) If DowneastDem’s reading of the law were correct, the only way in 19 which a petitioner could move for pre-action disclosure of identifying information of an anonymous 20 internet defendant whose location was unknown would be to move in every court in every jurisdiction all 21 over the world. New York law does not contemplate such an absurd result.

22 As numerous courts have made clear, “the law in New York governing pre-action discovery is 23 well settled.” (Cohen v. Google, Inc. (N.Y.Sup.Ct. 2009) 887 N.Y.S.2d 424, 426.) A petition for pre-24 action discovery under New York Civil Practice Law and Rules (“CPLR”) § 3102(c), limited to obtaining 25 the identity of prospective defendants, “should be granted where the petitioner has alleged facts fairly 26 indicating that he or she has some cause of action.” (Konig v. CSC Holdings, LLC (N.Y.App.Div. 2013) 27 977 N.Y.S.2d 756, 758.) The purpose behind this statutory device is to allow petitioners to “frame a 28 complaint and to obtain the identity of the prospective defendants.” (Stewart v. New York City Transit

1 Auth. (N.Y.App.Div.1985) 492 N.Y.S.2d 459, 460.) Courts evaluate whether the petitioner can show that 2 a cause of action exists, and that “the information sought is material and necessary to the actionable 3 wrong.” (Cohen, 887 N.Y.S.2d at 426.) Courts grant “requests for disclosure of the identities of 4 anonymous internet speakers where plaintiffs [have] made a prima facie showing of the proposed 5 defamation claim,” (Deer Consumer Prod., Inc. v. Little (N.Y.Sup.Ct. 2012) 938 N.Y.S.2d 767, 782,) as 6 that is the requirement for the use of § 3102(c). (See Greenbaum v. Google, Inc. (N.Y.Sup.Ct. 2007) 845 7 N.Y.S.2d 695, 699 [holding that § 3102(c) “may be appropriate to identify potential defendants” when the 8 petitioner can “demonstrate that it has a meritorious cause of action”].)

9 The New York court’s power to issue a subpoena to the Daily Kos to identify an anonymous 10 defendant did not depend on establishing personal jurisdiction over DowneastDem. Of course, 11 Mr. Kennedy was required to provide notice and serve the petition on the respondent, the Daily Kos. (See 12 N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 403(a).) This is precisely what the New York court’s order to show cause required.
13 (Wenner Decl., Ex. 2 [“it is ORDERED that service of a copy of this Order to show cause . . . be made . .
14 . on Kos Media, LLC by personal service, and shall be deemed good and sufficient service[.]”]; see also 15 Connors, McKinney Practice Commentary, (2018) N.Y. C.P.L.R. § 3102 [“[The service and notice 16 requirements under Article 4 of the CPLR are] necessary to ensure that jurisdiction is obtained over the 17 respondent from whom pre-action disclosure is sought.” (emphasis added)].) As mentioned above, the 18 Daily Kos—the respondent in the special proceeding—appeared and waived any personal jurisdiction 19 defense. DowneastDem meanwhile knew of the proceeding as early as February 2021 (see Wenner Decl.
20 ¶ 8.), and could have attempted to intervene to contest the petition as an interested party but chose to wait 21 and see what happened instead. (Cf. Greenbaum, 845 N.Y.S.2d at 698 [permitting anonymous internet 22 blogger to intervene in pre-action petition against Google].)

23 DowneastDem cites no cases that hold that the New York court was required to establish personal 24 jurisdiction over the anonymous defendant before it could authorize a subpoena to the Daily Kos. (Pet.’s 25 Aug. 10 Mem. at 15–16.) DowneastDem cites cases that explicitly concern subject matter jurisdiction.
26 (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 15.) Both courts in Matter of Wallace (N.Y.App.Div. 1998) 667 N.Y.S.2d 768 27 and Perez v. New York Presbyterian (N.Y.City Civ.Ct. 2006) 811 N.Y.S.2d 914 stated that the disputes at 28 issue there concerned whether the Surrogate Court, which is “of limited subject matter jurisdiction and

1 may only entertain those proceedings and exercise those powers conferred upon it by statute,” (Wallace,
2 667 N.Y.S.2d at 769,) has the power to grant a specific form of relief. (See Perez, 811 N.Y.S.2d at 916.)
3 But the New York Supreme Court—the court of general jurisdiction—may properly hear a defamation 4 action and pre-action petitions for disclosures relating to the same without first establishing personal 5 jurisdiction over the unknown defendant. (Cf. Lemon Juice v. Twitter, Inc. (N.Y.Sup.Ct. 2014) 997 6 N.Y.S.2d 669 [ordering disclosure where “the anonymous Twitter account creator’s behavior constitutes 7 an actionable tort and is not speech covered by First Amendment protection”].)⁴

8 Lastly, DowneastDem suggests that Mr. Kennedy’s pre-action petition in New York should have 9 disclosed that DowneastDem “is a Maine resident.” (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 15–16.) But Mr. Kennedy 10 has no idea whether this true. And in any event, DowneastDem’s residence does not deprive the New York 11 court of subject matter jurisdiction nor determine the extent of DowneastDem’s contacts with New York, 12 which may be sufficient to subject DowneastDem to personal jurisdiction in New York. Regardless, 13 DowneastDem’s purported residence is based on the argument of her attorney, not a declaration by 14 DowneastDem herself or even a sworn statement by her attorney. DowneastDem’s counsel argues that 15 DowneastDem’s Maine residence can be inferred from hearsay evidence because her moniker purportedly
16 “refers to coastal regions of Maine and Canada’s Atlantic Provinces.” (Ibid.) But even if DowneastDem 17 has some connection in her life to this admittedly large, international region, that does not establish where 18 she is subject to suit presently. DowneastDem’s counsel then points to three blog posts by DowneastDem 19 that reference Maine. (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 16 n.2.) But DowneastDem’s blog posts also reveal that 20 she spent part of her career “at the US office of Deutsche Bank in New York City.” (Wenner Decl., Ex.
21 10.)⁵ DowneastDem very well may have been in Maine (or not) in 2019—the date of the last post 22 DowneastDem’s counsel cites—but that does not mean DowneastDem remained there through the 23

24 ⁴ For the same reason, DowneastDem’s references to the defamation carve-out of New York’s long-arm statute permitting suits against non-domiciliaries is inapt: the purpose behind § 3102(c) is to identify 25 a would-be defendant whose domiciliary of course cannot be ascertained beforehand, whether under a long-arm statute or otherwise, regardless of the extent of that defendant’s contacts with New York.

26 ⁵ DowneastDem also suggests that a non-party NGO that Mr. Kennedy is affiliated with “admitted that DowneastDem is in Maine.” (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 16.) But the blog post, which was from after 27 the petition was filed, was simply parroting the assertions made by DowneastDem’s attorney. (See Pet.
Ex. W [noting that Paul Levy contacted Mr. Kennedy’s counsel to explain that he was “representing 28 Downeast Dem, pro bono, in a bid to save Downeast Dem, presumably a Maine Democrat, from having to reveal his identity.”].)

1 pandemic or even resided there to begin with.

2 The New York court determined that Mr. Kennedy met his prima facie burden to establish a cause 3 of action for defamation against DowneastDem. The New York court properly authorized a subpoena to 4 the Daily Kos, which had consented to appear before it. Nothing more was required under New York law.

5 B. DowneastDem Cannot Relitigate Issues Resolved in New York.

6 DowneastDem should be collaterally estopped from relitigating issues the Daily Kos already raised 7 on her behalf. From the beginning, DowneastDem and the Daily Kos have coordinated to ensure the Daily 8 Kos litigated DowneastDem’s rights while DowneastDem waited on the sidelines until she could take a 9 second shot in a different court. Even now, the Daily Kos and DowneastDem both claim to be asserting 10 DowneastDem’s rights. In New York, through the Daily Kos, with whom she is in privity, DowneastDem 11 already made the very arguments she makes here. The New York court heard and adjudicated the issues 12 DowneastDem is now trying to relitigate, and its decision is binding.

13 California courts give full faith and credit to sister-state court judgments. (See, e.g., Proctor v.
14 Vishay Intertechnology, Inc. (2013) 213 Cal.App.4th 1258, 1271; see also V.L. v. E.L. (2016) 577 U.S.
15 404, 407 [“A State may not disregard the judgment of a sister State because it disagrees with the reasoning 16 underlying the judgment or deems it to be wrong on the merits.”].) In addition, “issue preclusion prohibits 17 the relitigation of issues argued and decided in a previous case, even if the second suit raises different 18 causes of action. Under issue preclusion, the prior judgment conclusively resolves an issue actually 19 litigated and determined in the first action. Issue preclusion applies (1) after final adjudication (2) of an 20 identical issue (3) actually litigated and necessarily decided in the first suit and (4) asserted against one 21 who was a party in the first suit or one in privity with that party.” (Meridian Fin. Servs., Inc. v. Phan 22 (2021) 67 Cal.App.5th 657, quotation marks omitted.) All of these elements are satisfied here.

23 First, the New York court’s decision is final. Under New York law, even if a “judgment is pending 24 on appeal, this does not deprive it of preclusive effect under New York law.” (Depasquale v. Allstate Ins.
25 Co. (2d Cir. 2002) 50 Fed.Appx. 475, 475–76.) And while an adjudication is not deemed final if subject 26 to appeal under California law, California courts recognize that “the validity and effect of a foreign 27 judgment are governed by the laws of the state in which it is rendered.” (Brinker v. Superior Court (1991)
28 235 Cal.App.3d 1296, 1300 [holding that because a judgment in a New Jersey action was considered final

1 under New Jersey law for res judicata purposes despite pending appeal, it would be recognized as such in 2 California]; see also R.S. v. PacifiCare Life & Health Ins. Co. (2011) 194 Cal.App4th 192, 197 [“when 3 determining the preclusive effect of a sister-state judgment, California courts measure that effect under 4 the law of the state whose court rendered the judgment”].) DowneastDem therefore cannot try to use
5 California law to argue that the New York decision is not final, as California’s own choice-of-law 6 provisions afford New York’s law concerning finality operative here, just as it does in the context of the 7 prima facie showing itself.

8 Second, the New York court resolved the same issues that DowneastDem is now trying to litigate
9 in California—namely, whether Mr. Kennedy satisfied his prima facie burden to demonstrate a defamation 10 claim against her. She argues that her statements are not actionable, that they are opinion, that they are 11 based on disclosed facts, and ultimately, that they are protected under the First Amendment—the very 12 same arguments the Daily Kos raised on her behalf in the New York court earlier this year. (Compare 13 Pet.’s Aug. 10. Mem. at 16–25 with Wenner Decl. ¶ 6.) Likewise, DowneastDem claims that Mr. Kennedy 14 will be unable to show that her statements “were published with actual malice,” Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 15 p. 20—again, the exact issue the Daily Kos argued on her behalf and lost in New York. See Wenner Decl.
16 ¶ 6; see also Pet. Ex. B (April 16 Order) at p. 3 [“Respondent has raised a number of factual issues and 17 legal arguments, which may provide a defense, in whole or in part, in any future litigation. These factual 18 issues and legal arguments, however, do not provide a basis to deny the relief sought in the petition.”].)
19 DowneastDem is now raising these same issues to have another bite at the proverbial apple in a different 20 jurisdiction. That is precisely what the doctrine of collateral estoppel is meant to prevent. (See Sandoval 21 v. Superior Court (1983) 140 Cal.App.3d 932, 941 [“Collateral estoppel is an equitable concept based on 22 fundamental principles of fairness . . . [which] means that a party ordinarily may not relitigate an issue 23 that was fully and fairly litigated on a previous occasion.”].)

24 Third, DowneastDem is in privity with the Daily Kos. Under New York law, privity exists “when 25 the connection between the parties [is] such that the interests of the nonparty can be said to have been 26 represented in the prior proceeding” (Anonymous v. New York State Just. Ctr. for the Prot. of People With 27 Special Needs (N.Y. App. Div. 2018) 89 N.Y.S.3d 346, 351) or when a non-party’s “interests are 28 represented by a party to the action.” (Buechel v. Bain (2001) 766 N.E.2d 914, 920; see also In re

1 Stephiana UU. (N.Y. App. Div. 2009) 887 N.Y.S.2d 699, 703 [“Generally, to establish privity the 2 connection between the parties must be such that the interests of the nonparty can be said to have been 3 represented in the prior proceeding.”]). In the New York action, the Daily Kos sought to thwart efforts to 4 disclose DowneastDem’s identity, asserting third-party standing on behalf of DowneastDem to litigate her 5 First Amendment right to anonymity. That is the same goal DowneastDem has here, and it is hard to 6 imagine a greater nexus of interests between two parties. The Daily Kos’s interests in the New York action
7 overlap almost entirely with DowneastDem’s interests in remaining anonymous, and indeed, it is no 8 coincidence that the two raise identical arguments in an effort to achieve identical goals in the two actions.
9 DowneastDem even coordinated with the Daily Kos to attempt to settle the action in February 2021.
10 (Wenner Decl. ¶¶ 7-8.) There can be no doubt that DowneastDem’s interests in the New York litigation 11 are inextricably interwoven with—because they are identical to—the positions the Daily Kos took and the 12 arguments it made in that proceeding.

13 Even if any of these elements is disputed, considerations of equity militate in favor of preclusion.
14 Collateral estoppel is an “equitable doctrine,” one that is “grounded in the facts and realities of a particular 15 litigation rather than rigid rules.” (Buechel, supra, 766 N.E.2d at p. 919.) As New York courts have 16 explained, the enumeration of [the] elements [of collateral estoppel] is intended merely as a framework, 17 not a substitute, for case-by-case analysis of the facts and realities. In the end, the fundamental inquiry is 18 whether relitigation should be permitted in a particular case in light of fairness to the parties, conservation 19 of the resources of the court and the litigants, and the societal interests in consistent and accurate results.
20 ” (Ibid., quotation marks omitted.) DowneastDem was on notice from the start that litigation was imminent 21 when attorneys for Mr. Kennedy posted a demand letter on her defamatory blog post. (Wenner Decl., Ex.
22 1.) DowneastDem then communicated with the Daily Kos concerning the litigation and joined in the 23 settlement proposal that the Daily Kos presented to Mr. Kennedy in February 2021. (Wenner Decl. ¶¶ 7-24 8.) Rather than formally intervene in the New York litigation, however, DowneastDem was content to let 25 the Daily Kos litigate on her behalf, and then, when the Daily Kos lost, emerge in California to try to re-26 litigate those issues by objecting to the subpoena authorized by the New York court. Allowing her to 27 shadow the Daily Kos in this manner would undermine the very purpose behind the doctrine of collateral 28 estoppel. (See California Logistics, Inc. v. State of California (2008) 161 Cal.App.4th 242, 249 [the

1 doctrine “promotes judicial economy by minimizing repetitive litigation, prevents inconsistent judgments, 2 which may undermine the integrity of the judicial system, and protects against vexatious litigation”].)

3 C. False Statements that Mr. Kennedy “joined neo-Nazis” at a Protest in Berlin
4 Organized by the German “AfD party” and “neo-Nazi NPD party” Are 5 Defamatory Statements of Fact.

6 DowneastDem did not simply call Mr. Kennedy names using vague, inflammatory language.
7 DowneastDem accused Mr. Kennedy of taking a precise action that is provably false. DowneastDem stated 8 that “Anti-Vaxxer RFK JR. joins neo-Nazis in massive Berlin ‘Anti-Corona’ Protest” and that the “protest
9 was organized by right-wing extremist organizations- including the AfD party and various anti-Semitic 10 conspiracy groups as well as the neo-Nazi NPD party.” (Wenner Decl., Ex. 1.) Either Mr. Kennedy joined 11 neo-Nazis at a protest in Berlin organized by the specific groups DowneastDem identified, or he did not.
12 Mr. Kennedy will prove at trial that he did not.

13 To get around these obviously factual statements, DowneastDem rewrites them to better fit her 14 argument that the statements constitute protected opinion under the First Amendment, and so are not even 15 prima facie actionable. DowneastDem claims that the statements are “opinionated writing” that merely 16 contain “References to ‘neo-Nazis’ and the ‘Extreme Right[.]’” (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 16–17.)
17 DowneastDem claims that by stating Mr. Kennedy “joined neo-Nazis” at a protest organized by German 18 neo-Nazi political parties that she specifically identified was simply “name-calling.” (Id. at 17 [citing 19 Seelig v. Infinity Broadcast. Corp. (2002) 97 Cal.App.4th 798, 810 (Seelig)].) But DowneastDem’s 20 statements are not “too vague to be capable of being proven true or false,” as they were in Seelig, cited by 21 DowneastDem, where the defendant was accused of being a “local loser and chicken butt.” (Seelig, 97 22 Cal.App.4th at 810.) DowneastDem did not call Mr. Kennedy “extremist,” “racist,” “anti-Semitic,” or 23 even a “neo-Nazi” in the vague way these terms were used in the cases DowneastDem cites. (See, e.g., 24 Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 17 [citing Overhill Farms v. Lopez (2010) 190 Cal.App.4th 1248, 1261–62 (noting 25 that “racist” standing alone is a “a word that lacks precise meaning”)].) Like in Overhill Farms, 26 DowneastDem “did not merely accuse [Mr. Kennedy] of being ‘racist’ in some abstract sense.” (Overhill 27 Farms 190 Cal.App.4th at 1262.) Rather, DowneastDem used “language which expressly accuses [Mr.
28 Kennedy] of engaging in” a specific action, which in Overhill Farms was “racist firings.” (Ibid. [“The assertion of racism, when viewed in that specific factual context, is not merely a hyperbolic

1 characterization of Overhill’s black corporate heart—it represents an accusation of concrete, wrongful 2 conduct.”].)⁶

3 Not only does DowneastDem mischaracterize the defamatory statements themselves, 4 DowneastDem applies the wrong law. DowneastDem incorrectly cites California law in her attempts to 5 show that her statements are opinion. As the court held in the controlling case DowneastDem 6 acknowledges applies here, in the context of a reciprocal subpoena brought under Cal. Civ. Proc. Code §
7 2029.350 and challenged in California on First Amendment grounds, a “plaintiff’s prima facie burden
8 must be defined and satisfied according to [the law of the issuing state].” (Krinsky v. Doe 6 (2008) 159
9 Cal.App.4th 1154, 1173 (hereafter Krinsky) [holding that Florida’s law applied in California court’s 10 determination whether prima facie showing of defamation was met because that was where plaintiff’s 11 complaint was originally filed]). Here, the issuing state is New York, and so DowneastDem’s citations to 12 California caselaw (see Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 16-17) are inappropriate (though ultimately unhelpful to 13 DowneastDem insofar as they warrant the same conclusions concerning the validity of the California 14 subpoena that New York law does).

15 As mentioned above, the New York court already rejected the argument that the defamatory

17 ⁶ A careful reading of the other cases DowneastDem cites demonstrates why DowneastDem’s 18 statements are actionable. (See Pet. Aug. 10 Mem. at 17 n.3.) In Moyer v. Amador Valley J. Union High 19 School Dist. (1990) 225 Cal.App.3d 720, 725, which did not concern a statement about being a “fascist,” 20 as DowneastDem suggested, the word “babbling” was not used literally but as an “exaggerated expression 21 conveying the student-speaker’s disapproval of plaintiff’s teaching or speaking style.” In Washburn v.
22 Wright (1968) 261 Cal.App.2d 789, 796, “extremist organization” could be actionable if it “meant and 23 were understood to mean an organization advocating obnoxious ends or the use of illegal violence and all 24 other possible means to attain its ends,” but it was not actionable in that case because the term referred to 25 “an organization poles apart from the defendants in some undefined field of opinion, or, from the context 26 of the whole advertisement, in the field of educational theory.” In Grutzmacher v. Chicago Sun-Times (Ill.
27 Cir. Sept. 28, 1994) 1994 WL 742257 at *4, the term “neo-Nazi” referred to “a wide group of people 28 based upon those persons’ views, and is not tantamount to an allegation of sympathy with Nazi Germany,” as was literally the case with DowneastDem’s references to German neo-Nazi political parties. In Nelsen
v. Southern Poverty Law Center, whether the statements were actionable depended on whether they implied a course of action by the plaintiff. ((W.D. Mo., July 31, 2019, No. 4:18-00895-CV-RK) 2019 WL 12288374 at *5–6 [holding that “statements implying that Nelsen is a neo-Nazi, anti-immigrant, and a racist” “are not objectively verifiable,” but holding that statements implying that Nelsen is opening a ‘whites-only’ or ‘whites-favored’ Club” were defamatory]; see also Nat’l Rifle Assoc. of Am. v. Cuomo (N.D.N.Y. 2018) 350 F.Supp.3d 94, 133 [“statement that the ‘[t]he NRA is an extremist organization’ is clearly an expression of [] opinion”]; Brimelow v. N.Y. Times Co. (S.D.N.Y., Dec. 16, 2020) 2020 WL 7405261 at *6 [whether plaintiff was an “open white nationalist” was actionable, but “white nationalist” on its own “has a debatable, loose and varying meaning,” quotation marks omitted].)

1 statements were protected opinion and held that, as a matter of New York law, the statements were 2 actionable statements of fact. (Pet. Ex. B (April Order) at 3 [“the petition alleges sufficient facts, which 3 fairly indicate that he has a claim for defamation and is thus entitled to pre-action discovery limited to 4 obtaining the identity of prospective defendants.”]). The New York court recognized that DowneastDem 5 might raise factual issues at trial that provide a defense against the defamation claim, but that simply 6 underscores why the statements present a triable question of fact. Even if this Court does not preclude 7 DowneastDem from raising the same argument here, the New York decision is persuasive authority 8 concerning the application of a foreign state’s law on the precise question at issue here.

9 After mischaracterizing the defamatory statements as “name-calling” and ignoring that New York
10 law applies, DowneastDem next likens her statements to “political opinion” that actually “did not call 11 Kennedy anything.” (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 17–18.) But DowneastDem’s tour through First Amendment 12 jurisprudence, including caselaw establishing that derogatory terms such as “fascist” and “racist” standing 13 alone are non-actionable, fails to engage with the context of her own statements.⁷ Through them, she 14 asserted that Mr. Kennedy joined a particular group and spoke at a particular time and place.
15 DowneastDem claimed that Mr. Kennedy, while he was in Berlin, joined with people who openly identify 16 as neo-Nazis at a protest that was organized by not just “extremist” groups, but by specific groups that 17 promote anti-Semitic and Nazi ideals. These were not neo-Nazis in a vague, derogatory sense; these were 18 literally the very groups that took up the mantle of post-World War II National Socialism in Germany⁸

20 ⁷ DowneastDem complains that many of the cases Mr. Kennedy cited in his briefing in the New 21 York proceeding to show that the statements were damaging are “from another era,” (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem.
22 at 18) presumably implying that in today’s climate, alleging association with neo-Nazis would not have 23 the same objectionable character. This argument is unpersuasive. First, the New York court deemed Mr.
24 Kennedy’s argument compelling in context, and attempting to relitigate it here is inappropriate. Second, 25 many of the relevant cases are not “from another era,” postdating the seminal First Amendment law 26 DowneastDem cites. Third, it is more than reasonable to observe that “the mental climate of the times” is 27 such that statements about cavorting with neo-Nazis is as damaging and reprehensible today as it was a 28 few decades ago. Finally, and perhaps most importantly, DowneastDem misunderstands the significance of her defamatory statements when she writes that name-calling is protected opinion: the actionable statements are her false accusations of actions Mr. Kennedy allegedly performed, such as joining a particular group at a particular time, or giving a speech in a particular place.

⁸ For example, the German Federal Constitutional Court found that the principles and behavior of the National Democratic Party of Germany (the “neo-Nazi NPD party” identified by DowneastDem) “violate human dignity (1.) and the core of the principle of democracy (2.) and show elements of a kinship with historical National Socialism (3.)”

(https://www.bverfg.de/e/bs20170117_2bvb000113.html (google translate))

1 and stormed the Reichstag during a different protest from the one Mr. Kennedy attended.

2 The claim that Mr. Kennedy joined these admitted neo-Nazis at a particular location at a particular 3 time is provably false. (See Moyer v. Amador Valley J. Union High Sch. Dist. (1990) 225 Cal.App.3d 720, 4 724 [“The dispositive question for the court is whether a reasonable factfinder could conclude that the 5 published statements imply a provably false factual assertion.”].) DowneastDem even admits the 6 statements are provably false by arguing that the statements were in fact true. (See Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem.
7 at 19 [“The context here was supplied by the article itself, which said, truthfully, that the protest had been 8 organized by various right-wing extremist organizations including a neo-Nazi party, known as the AfD”].)
9 Either Mr. Kennedy joined neo-Nazis at their protest or he did not.

10 DowneastDem tries to downplay this plain and commonsense conclusion by observing that some 11 dictionary definitions of the word “join” can sometimes have different meanings, some of which “simply 12 refer to being at the same place as the same time,” without connoting intentional association. (Pet.’s Aug.
13 10 Mem. at 19.) Here, too, she fails to apply bedrock principles of the First Amendment jurisprudence she 14 extols. In evaluating claims concerning libel, courts examine whether the target language has “a precise 15 meaning which is readily understood,” whether it is capable of being proven true or false,” and whether 16 “considering the context in which the statements were made, readers are likely to understand the 17 statements to be opinion rather than fact.” (Loder v. Nied, (N.Y. App. Div. 2011) 932 N.Y.S.2d 546, 549.)
18 DowneastDem’s publication on the Kos website was not in a context in which a reasonable person would 19 understand it to mean that Mr. Kennedy just happened to unknowingly or unintentionally be amongst neo-20 Nazis, or that DowneastDem was stating her opinion. Rather, the word “join,” in context, indicates 21 deliberate association to the relevant audience. (After all, what made the claims noteworthy in the first 22 place, to DowneastDem and fellow bloggers, was the alleged choice of association, not the happenstance 23 coincidence of certain groups of people.) To claim that saying Mr. Kennedy “joins neo-Nazis in massive 24 protest” is somehow a statement “about other participants in the protest,” (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 19) 25 rather than Mr. Kennedy’s own conduct is not a credible construal of either the statement or its context.

26 D. The Doctrine of Opinion Based on Disclosed Fact Is Inapplicable Here.

27 DowneastDem’s third argument attempting to relitigate the issue already decided in New York, 28 that her statements are protected under the doctrine of opinion based on disclosed fact, is inapplicable here

1 because they are not opinion at all. As discussed above, DowneastDem stated that Mr. Kennedy “joined”
2 a group of neo-Nazis at a large protest in Berlin and spoke at their rally. Mr. Kennedy either did or did not 3 undertake these actions, and so DowneastDem’s statements are factual; the doctrine of opinion based on 4 disclosed fact simply does not come into play.

5 As the very caselaw DowneastDem cites expressly states, the First Amendment protects 6 expressions that “do not imply facts capable of being proved true or false.” (Nicosia v. De Rooy (N.D.
7 Cal. 1999) 72 F. Supp. 2d 1093, 1101.) At the same time, “assertions of fact and statements that may 8 imply a false assertion of fact are not protected.” (Ibid.) The doctrine of opinion based on disclosed fact 9 does not undercut, undermine, or in any way modify this tenet—the rule only applies when the statement
10 at issue does not imply “facts capable of being proved true or false.” (Ibid.) To cite, again, a case 11 DowneastDem misleadingly attempts to leverage, “[t]he rationale behind [the doctrine] is straightforward: 12 When the facts underlying a statement of opinion are disclosed, readers will understand they are getting 13 the author’s interpretation of the facts presented; they are therefore unlikely to construe the statement as 14 insinuating the existence of additional, undisclosed facts.” (Standing Comm. on Discipline of U.S. Dist.
15 Ct. for Cent. Dist. of California v. Yagman (9th Cir. 1995) 55 F.3d 1430, 1439 [emphasis added].) As 16 evident in this articulation of the rule, it only bears on statements of opinion, not assertions of fact.
17 DowneastDem did not overlay her own subjective interpretation on top of some underlying facts when 18 she reported that Mr. Kennedy had joined neo-Nazis at a protest: that is itself a provably false statement 19 of fact.

20 DowneastDem recites a litany of other points that similarly have no bearing here. Whether the 21 blog post in which her statements were made also suggested that she herself was in Berlin; whether her 22 audience understood that she often comments on German politics; and whether the blog post links to other 23 articles that readers could use to “form their own conclusions” about whether she had “drawn fair 24 conclusions,” (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 20) are all irrelevant. DowneastDem did not make a “broad 25 characterization,” (id. at 19) based on sourced material; she expressed specific, factual propositions that 26 ascribed Mr. Kennedy as having performed specific actions in a specific time and place. The doctrine of 27 opinion based on disclosed facts is only operative when the statements at issue “proffer a hypothesis” that 28 is “readily understood by the audience as conjecture.” (Gross v. New York Times Co. (1993) 82 N.Y.2d

1 146, 154.) DowneastDem’s assertions of disprovable fact do not fall under this category. (See ibid.
2 [holding that statements “would be understood by the reasonable reader as assertions of fact.”].) Once 3 again, California courts hold the same. (See, e.g., Bently Rsrv. LP v. Papaliolios (2013) 218 Cal.App.4th 4 418, 428, 431, 433 [holding that statements asserting that individual undertook specific actions are 5 “actionable assertions of fact” and that while generalized comments on the Internet that lack any 6 specificity as to the time or place of alleged conduct may be a further signal to the reader there is no factual 7 basis for the accusations, specifics, if given, may signal the opposite and render an Internet posting 8 actionable”] [internal quotation marks omitted].)

9 DowneastDem’s descriptions of Mr. Kennedy’s actions are in no way opinion, and, thus, whether 10 based on hyperlinked articles, news stories, or other purported factual sources, they are unprotected by the 11 doctrine of opinion based on disclosed fact.⁹

12 E. Mr. Kennedy Met the Prima Facie Burden Required for the California
13 Subpoena under Both New York and California Law.

14 DowneastDem’s petition to quash effectively asks the Court to hold a trial now on the truth of 15 DowneastDem’s defamatory statements. (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 20–25.) This was the same approach—
16 rejected by the New York court—taken by the Daily Kos in opposition to Mr. Kennedy’s New York 17 petition. Indeed, the Daily Kos and DowneastDem both rely on much of the same hearsay evidence from 18 newspapers. Like the Daily Kos, DowneastDem misapplies both New York and California law and would 19 have the Court weigh the evidence, thereby imposing a heightened burden on Mr. Kennedy that has been 20 explicitly rejected by California courts. Moreover, Mr. Kennedy’s prima facie burden is defined by New 21 York law, which he has already satisfied. But even under California law, Mr. Kennedy easily meets his 22 burden to justify pre-action disclosure.

24 ⁹ Even if DowneastDem’s statements could in some way be interpreted as opinion, or a close call—25 which they cannot—that would still not be enough to protect it. New York courts have long held that 26 merely adding a prefatory phrase such as “I believe that” to a factual statement does not make it non-27 actionable, protected opinion. (See, e.g., Suarez v. Angelet (N.Y. App. Div. 2011) 935 N.Y.S.2d 599, 601.) 28 California courts concur. (See Issa v. Applegate (2019) 31 Cal.App.5th 689, 702 [“a statement of opinion that implies a false assertion of fact is actionable” [quoting McGarry v. Univ. of San Diego (2007) 154 Cal.App.4th 97, 112 [“simply couching such statements in terms of opinion does not dispel these [false, defamatory] implications because a speaker may still imply a knowledge of facts which lead to the [defamatory] conclusion”] [internal citations and quotation marks omitted].)

1 1. Mr. Kennedy Established that DowneastDem’s Statements are Defamatory.

2 Applying New York law, this Court should reach the same result as the New York court. “[I]n 3 examining the law of defamation . . . plaintiff’s prima facie burden must be defined and satisfied”
4 according to the law of the state where the cause of action arose. (Krinsky, 159 Cal.App.4th at 1173 5 [holding that the statements were non-actionable opinion under Florida law]; see also St. Louis-San 6 Francisco Ry. Co. v. Super. Ct. (1969) 276 Cal.App.2d 762, 766 [in defamation case, holding the law of 7 the place “where the cause of action arose must be applied”].) In this case, a lawsuit has not yet been filed.
8 Mr. Kennedy established, however, that venue and jurisdiction for his pre-litigation petition under New 9 York CPLR 3102(c) were proper in New York because he is a resident of Westchester County, New York,
10 and because DowneastDem’s statements were published throughout the United States and internationally, 11 including in Westchester County. (Pet. Ex. A (N.Y. Pet.) at ¶ 4.) New York law therefore controls Mr.
12 Kennedy’s claims arising from DowneastDem’s defamatory statements. (See Tingley v. Times-Mirror Co.
13 (1904) 144 Cal. 205, 206 [“The liability arises where the injury occurs, and the injury in the case of libel 14 is peculiarly at the county in which the plaintiff resides[.]”].)

15 New York courts regularly resolve petitions for pre-action disclosure of anonymous defendants 16 for anticipated defamation lawsuits. Pre-action petitions often involve third-party custodians, such as the 17 Daily Kos, that provide the internet service over which the statements were made. (See, e.g., Cohen v.
18 Google, Inc. (Sup. Ct. N.Y. Cty. 2009) 887 N.Y.S.2d 424; Lemon Juice v. Twitter, Inc. (Sup. Ct. Kings 19 Cty. 2014) 997 N.Y.S.2d 669.) New York courts apply New York law to the prima facie analysis. There, 20 “to obtain disclosure prior to commencing an action,” “the applicant must show the existence of a prima 21 facie cause of action.” (Toal v. Staten Island Univ. Hosp. (2d Dep’t 2002) 752 N.Y.S.2d 372, 374.) A 22 request “limited to obtaining the identity of prospective defendants should be granted where the petitioner 23 has alleged facts fairly indicating that he or she has some cause of action.” (Konig v. WordPress.com (2d 24 Dep’t 2013) 978 N.Y.S.2d 92, 93; see also Pet. Ex. B (April 16 Order) at 3 [“Thus, a petitioner is entitled 25 to obtain the identity of prospective defendants where a petitioner has alleged facts, which state a cause 26 of action.”].) In examining a prima facie case for defamation, “courts will not strain to interpret [the words 27 used] in their mildest and most inoffensive sense to hold them nonlibelous.” (Mencher v. Chesley (1947)
28 297 N.Y. 94, 99.)

1 As the New York court already ruled, “[Mr. Kennedy’s] petition alleges sufficient facts, which 2 fairly indicate that [he] has a claim for defamation and is thus entitled to pre-action discovery limited to 3 obtaining the identity of prospective defendants.” (Pet. Ex. B (April 16 Order) at 3.) As Mr. Kennedy 4 established before the New York court on the pre-action petition, the statements are false because Mr.
5 Kennedy did not “join[] neo-Nazis” at a protest in Berlin, nor did he speak at a “protest [] organized by 6 right-wing extremist organizations, including the AfD party and various anti-Semitic conspiracy groups 7 as well as the neo-Nazi NPD party.” (Pet. Ex. A.) Mr. Kennedy gave a speech specifically decrying 8 Nazism at the Protest for Peace and Freedom in Berlin. Querdenken 711—the organizer of the protest 9 where Mr. Kennedy spoke—is not “the AfD party,” an “anti-Semitic conspiracy group,” or “the neo-Nazi 10 NPD party.” Rather, it is a democratic movement that opposes all forms of fascism and extremism. (Id.)

11 Notably, while New York law plainly applies, Mr. Kennedy also meets the burden to establish a 12 prima facie case under California law, which requires “evidence that a libelous statement has been made.”
13 (Krinsky, 159 Cal.App.4th at 1172.) Prima facie evidence, in turn, is “that which will support a ruling in 14 favor of its proponent if no controverting evidence is presented. It may be slight evidence which creates a 15 reasonable inference of fact sought to be established but need not eliminate all contrary inferences.” (Id.
16 at 1172, fn. 14 [internal citations omitted].)

17 Mr. Kennedy’s assertions that DowneastDem’s statements are false and defamatory are easily 18 substantiated. He did not join neo-Nazis at a protest in Berlin. (Wenner Decl., Ex. 12.) Rather, he gave a 19 speech at the Protest for Peace and Freedom in Berlin. And far from joining neo-Nazis, Mr. Kennedy 20 specifically decried Nazism and totalitarianism, stating:

21 I look at this crowd, and I see the opposite of Nazism. I see people who love democracy; 22 people who want open government; people who want leaders that are not going to lie to 23 them; people who [want] leaders who will not make up arbitrary rules and regulations to orchestrate obedience of the population.

24 (Id. at ¶ 5.) Furthermore, the Protest for Peace and Freedom that Mr. Kennedy attended was not organized 25 by the AfD party, an anti-Semitic conspiracy group, or the neo-Nazi NPD party; it was organized by a 26 group called Querdenken 711. (Id. at ¶ 6.) Querdenken 711 is a democratic movement whose name means 27 “lateral thinking” and that opposes all forms of fascism and extremism. (Wenner Decl., Ex. 11.) These 28 facts provide all that is needed for a reasonable inference that DowneastDem’s statements are false. (See

1 Yelp Inc. v. Super. Ct. (2017) 17 Cal.App.5th 1, 19–20 [plaintiff “demonstrated a sufficient prima facie 2 case of defamation” where it alleged facts demonstrating the defamatory statement was false and 3 “supported those allegations in the declaration he submitted in support of his motion to compel”].)

4 2. The Court Should Not Weigh the Evidence on a Pre-action Petition.

5 In a pre-action petition for disclosure, the only question courts consider is whether the plaintiff 6 has proffered sufficient evidence to show that a libelous statement has been made—it does not weigh that 7 evidence against controverting proffers from an opposing party. Balancing of that kind—of the kind 8 DowneastDem asks this Court to do by considering DowneastDem’s evidentiary showing and determining 9 whether DowneastDem’s statements are factually true as a matter of law—is not appropriate here.
10 Accordingly, DowneastDem’s citations to hearsay in newspaper articles (or the purported “expert” 11 opinion of a journalist that itself rests on hearsay) and claims about the ultimate truth of her statements 12 are yet another attempt to distract this court from the only issue that is now relevant: whether Mr. Kennedy 13 has presented prima facie evidence of a libelous statement.

14 Courts throughout the United States, including in New York, have recognized the potential tension 15 between a plaintiff’s right to employ judicial process to discover the identity of an allegedly libelous 16 speaker, on the one hand, and a speaker’s First Amendment right to remain anonymous, on the other.
17 While, again, New York law applies, California courts have adopted the standard set out in Krinsky, 159 18 Cal.App.4th 1154, and further elaborated in ZL Techs., Inc. v. Does 1-7 (2017) 13 Cal.App.5th 603. In 19 Krinsky, though the court resolved the petition on the basis of Florida law, the court articulated a standard 20 under California law whereby a plaintiff must make a prima facie showing of the elements of libel to 21 obtain disclosure of a defendant’s identity; in ZL Techs, rejecting the very position argued for by 22 DowneastDem, the court reiterated that “a further balancing should not be required where it is clear to the 23 court that discovery of the defendant’s identity is necessary to pursue the plaintiff’s claim, and the plaintiff 24 makes a prima facie showing that a libelous statement has been made.” (ZL Techs., 13 Cal.App.5th 603 25 at 617 [internal quotation marks omitted].)

26 DowneastDem, while citing Krinsky, fails to acknowledge that it does not require a balancing. Nor 27 could it, as California precedent is clear that, in the context of a pre-action petition for disclosure, “the 28 court does not weigh evidence or resolve conflicting factual claims.” (Briganti v. Chow (2019) 42

1 Cal.App.5th 504, 509 [emphasis added] [internal quotation marks omitted] [rejecting anti-SLAPP motion 2 and holding prima facie burden satisfied the basis of plaintiff’s “own declaration and the declaration of 3 her business partner” asserting the falsity of the defamatory statements].) It evaluates only whether the 4 plaintiff has established that his claim has “minimal merit,” which does not involve determining whether 5 he has “prove[d] the specified claim to the trial court” but rather whether he has “stated and substantiated 6 a legally sufficient claim.” (Id. at 510) [holding that plaintiff “need only establish her claim has at least 7 minimal merit”].) In other words, even if DowneastDem had any admissible evidence, it would be 8 irrelevant at this stage.

9 In his sworn declaration, Mr. Kennedy has stated that he did not join neo-Nazis at a Berlin rally 10 on August 29, 2021, that he that he did not speak at a right-wing protest there, and that he did not observe 11 any neo-Nazi groups, symbols, or imagery at the place at which he was present on that day and at that 12 time. (Wenner Decl., Ex. 12.) These facts establish that DowneastDem’s statements are false. (See Yelp 13 17 Cal.App.5th 1 at 19–20 ([accepting a plaintiff’s declaration that the statements were false as prima 14 facie evidence of a defamation claim]).) While Mr. Kennedy does not yet have direct evidence of 15 DowneastDem’s state of mind—and therefore is not required to satisfy the actual malice standard now 16 (see Krinsky, 159 Cal.App. 4th at 1171 fn.12 [citing Doe v. Cahill, (Del. 2005) 884 A.2d 451, 464])—he 17 did point to DowneastDem’s mischaracterization of the only news article she cited as evidence that she 18 knowingly disregarded contrary facts. (Pet. Ex. A ¶ 8.)¹⁰ For example, the Der Tagesspiegel article linked 19 to by DowneastDem acknowledged that there were “several corona-related gatherings on this day” taking 20 place at different times and in different places throughout Berlin, contrary to DowneastDem’s assertion 21 that there was a single protest. Mr. Kennedy thus satisfied the “minimal” burden required of him under 22 California law (which he had already done to the court’s satisfaction in New York), and he used the 23 appropriate procedure to obtain a reciprocal subpoena in California.

24 _____
25 ¹⁰ Further demonstrating why DowneastDem’s subjective state of mind cannot be determined until 26 discovery, DowneastDem argues that other news reporting not cited in her post supports the truth of her 27 statements. (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 25 [“a showing of actual malice would have to be predicated on 28 proving that the blog post was so far different from what various sources in the mainstream media were saying about the protest that DowneastDem must have known that the blog post was wrong.”].) But there is no evidence in the record to suggest that DowneastDem saw any of the media sources cited in her brief other than the one article linked in the blog post, which did not state that Mr. Kennedy joined neo-Nazis as a protest organized by neo-Nazi groups.

1 Dissatisfied with these results, DowneastDem now seeks to relitigate the underlying issues and 2 reframe the relevant questions for this Court by offering newspaper articles and press reports about the 3 nature of the events in Berlin for their truth. Her very citation to these records shows that she has 4 misunderstood the relevant law and shows that these factual disputes will need to be resolved at trial. As 5 the court held in Yelp, 17 Cal.App.5th at 15, a “balancing test need not be applied in a case where the 6 plaintiff has already demonstrated a prima facie case of defamation.” Thus, whether one or more media 7 sources stated that “there was a substantial neo-Nazi presence” in Berlin when Mr. Kenney spoke on 8 August 29, (Pet.’s Aug. 10 Mem. at 21,) or whether Querdenken leaders allegedly issue “dog-whistle to 9 neo-Nazis,” (id. at 23,) do not bear on the question whether the California subpoena is valid.

10 Similarly, DowneastDem writes that “to win a libel suit, Kennedy must show that DowneastDem’s 11 blog post was not even ‘substantially true,’” (id. at 24) but the question before this Court is not whether 12 Mr. Kennedy should win his libel suit, or whether the blog post was made with actual malice. It is whether 13 he has offered sufficient evidence for a prima facie showing that a libelous statement was made, such that 14 a pre-action subpoena is valid. As multiple California courts have held, in the context of a pre-action 15 evidentiary showing of defamation, the burden on a plaintiff seeking the identity of pseudonymous 16 speakers in circumstances similar to these is “neither heavy nor unfamiliar,” (ZL Technologies, 13 17 Cal.App5th at 634,) because it is similar to the burden under California’s anti-SLAPP statute, (Code of 18 Civil Procedure, section 425.16): the plaintiff must “make a prima facie showing of facts which would, if 19 proved at trial, support a judgment in plaintiff’s favor,” but the court evaluates this evidence on its own 20 terms, rather than weighing it against purportedly countervailing evidence. (See ComputerXpress, Inc. v.
21 Jackson (2001) 93 Cal.App.4th 993, 1010 [internal quotation marks omitted] [“the court cannot weigh the 22 evidence.”]; see also Kyle v. Carmon (1999) 71 Cal.App.4th 901, 907; ZL Technologies, 13 Cal.App5th 23 at 633-34.) Accordingly, DowneastDem’s fourth argument fails to provide any grounds upon which the 24 California subpoena may be deemed invalid.

25 F. The Court Should Strike DowneastDem’s Improper and Untimely August 10
26 Filings.

27 DowneastDem twice failed to file papers in support of her petition to quash in violation of the 28 Rules of Court and this Court’s order. First, DowneastDem failed to file supporting papers with her

1 petition as required under the Code of Civil Procedure and Rules of Court. Second, DowneastDem then 2 failed to file supporting papers by the July 23 deadline that set in her subsequent ex parte application,¹¹ 3 which the Court granted in a July 7 minute order. Instead, DowneastDem filed supporting papers on 4 August 10, nearly seven weeks after she filed her petition on June 23, and nearly three weeks after the 5 July 23 deadline. DowneastDem never invoked any of the available procedures to obtain a court order 6 finding good cause for the late submission and permitting her late filings.

7 As Mr. Kennedy explained in his opening brief, the Act provides that a request to quash a subpoena 8 “shall be referred to as a petition” despite other statutes that may refer to a request for the same relief as a 9 “motion.” (Civ. Proc. Code, § 2029.600(a).) The Act also required a “petition under Section 2029.600” to 10 satisfy “the requirements of Section 1005 relating to notice and to filing and service of papers.” (Ibid., 11 emphasis added.) Section 1005, in turn, requires “written notice” of a “motion” or “[a]ny other proceeding 12 under this code in which notice is required,” and requires that “all moving and supporting papers shall be 13 served and filed at least 16 court days before the hearing.” (Civ. Proc. Code, § 1005(a)(1), (13) and (b).) 14 Consistent with the Code of Civil Procedure, Rule of Court 3.1112 require that “the papers filed in support 15 of a motion” must include a “notice of hearing on the motion,” the “motion itself,” and a “memorandum 16 in support of the motion.” (Cal. R. Court, rule 3.1112(a).) Similarly, rule 3.1113(a) requires that a “party 17 filing a motion,” like a petition to quash or compel compliance with a subpoena under the Act, “must 18 serve and file a supporting memorandum.” Further, rule 3.1114 lists the specific types of civil motions 19 and petitions that do not require contemporaneous moving papers, and a petition or a motion to quash is 20 not one of them. (See Cal. R. Court, rule 3.1114(a).)

21 After failing to file moving papers with her petition to quash on June 23, DowneastDem obtained 22 a second opportunity to file a motion to quash by July 23. Then, without seeking leave to file late, 23 DowneastDem filed her moving papers on August 10. California law clearly permits this Court to strike 24 the late papers, both for violating the Court’s July 7 order and because DowneastDem failed to obtain a 25 prior court order finding good cause and permitting the late papers. “A trial court has broad discretion

26 ¹¹ DowneastDem’s ex parte application violated Rule of Court 3.1204 by failing to state that Mr.
27 Kennedy would appear to oppose the application (Cal. Rules of Court, rule 3.1204(a)(2)), and instead 28 falsely implying that Mr. Kennedy’s counsel agreed with a November hearing on the petition and an extended briefing schedule (compare Wenner Decl., Ex. __, ¶¶ 13, 16-17 with Wenner Decl., ¶ __). As a result, the Court granted the application before Mr. Kennedy filed his opposition.

1 under rule 3.1300(d) of the California Rules of Court to refuse to consider papers served and filed beyond 2 the deadline without a prior court order finding good cause for late submission.” (Bozzi v. Nordstrom, Inc.
3 (2010) 186 Cal.App.4th 755, 765; see, e.g., Mackey v. Bd. of Trustees of Cal. State U. (2019) 31
4 Cal.App.5th 640, 657 [affirming exclusion of supporting papers inadvertently filed four days late]; Rancho
5 Mirage Country Club Homeowners Assn. v Hazelbaker (2016) 2 Cal.App.5th 252, 262–263 [affirming 6 exclusion of late-filed opposition papers where party did not seek leave for late filing]; see also Code Civ.
7 Proc., § 128(a)(4) [“Every court shall have the power to . . . compel obedience to its judgments, order, and 8 process . . . in an action or proceeding therein.”]; Code Civ. Proc., § 177(2) [“Every judicial officer shall 9 have power . . . [t]o compel obedience to his lawful orders.”].)

10 Even if DowneastDem had sought a prior court order excusing her non-compliance with the 11 governing law and this Court’s order, and attempted to demonstrate good cause (again, she has not), when 12 the fault for missed deadlines lies entirely within an attorney’s control, California courts do not find that 13 such mistakes are excused. (See, e.g., Henderson v. Pac. Gas & Elec. Co. (2010) 187 Cal.App.4th 215, 14 232-33 [attorney negligence resulting in late-filed brief was inexcusable, and failure to timely file motion 15 papers based on claims of internal law office mistakes did not constitute excusable inadvertence, surprise, 16 or neglect.]; Ambrose v. Michelin N. Am., Inc. (2005) 134 Cal.App.4th 1350, 1354 [attorney mistake is 17 typically “not excusable neglect” under California statute providing for relief from adverse decision]; Katz 18 v. Campbell Union High School Dist. (2006) 144 Cal.App.4th 1024, 1036 [“alleged lack of prejudice from 19 [attorney’s] failure to publish the proper summons and his opinion that it was published correctly. . . . is 20 not good cause. . . . A mistake of law is not sufficient in itself to support a good-cause finding” in reverse 21 validation action]; Garcia v. Hejmadi (1997) 58 Cal.App.4th 674, 682 [“Conduct falling below the 22 professional standard of care, such as failure to timely object or to properly advance an argument, is not 23 therefore excusable”].)

24 DowneastDem failed to seek a court order permitting her late filing on August 10, and she has not 25 shown good cause for ignoring the Court’s filing deadline—nor can she, given the clarity of that deadline 26 on both the docket and the Court website. The fault for missing it lies squarely with her, and so too should 27 the consequences. (See, e.g., Morgan v. So. Cal. Rapid Transit Dist. (1987) 192 Cal.App.3d 976, 983 [“A 28 party may disagree with a court order. He may believe it wrong-headed or a waste of time or picayunish—

1 but he disregards it at his peril.”]; see also Code Civ. Proc. § 128.5 [authority to impose a variety of 2 sanctions “as a result of actions or tactics, made in bad faith, that are frivolous or solely intended to cause 3 unnecessary delay”]; Code of Civ. Proc. § 128.7 [authority to sanction for filings that “cause unnecessary 4 delay or needless increase in the cost of litigation”].) Mr. Kennedy is “entitled to expect the trial court to 5 enforce [the rules].” (Bozzi, supra, 186 Cal.App.4th at p. 765.) Accordingly, the Court should refuse to 6 consider DowneastDem’s untimely August 10 filings.

7 G. DowneastDem is Not Entitled to Attorney’s Fees

8 DowneastDem is not entitled to attorney’s fees under California Code of Civil Procedure 9 section 1987.2(c). That statute permits reasonable attorney’s fees only if the respondent “has failed to 10 make a prima facie showing of a cause of action.” (Ibid., emphasis added.) Mr. Kennedy’s “prima facie 11 burden must be defined and satisfied according to” New York law (Krinsky, supra, 159 Cal.App.4th at p.
12 1173), and a New York court has already determined that he made that showing.

13 CONCLUSION

14 For all the foregoing reasons, Mr. Kennedy respectfully requests that the Court deny 15 DowneastDem’s petitions to quash the California subpoena to the Daily Kos authorized by the New York 16 court.
