In other words, it did you no good, other than exposing your desperation.

Same here.

Glad to discuss your client's copyright claim. I look forward to your letter addressing those issues as promised in your first email.

When I saw this comment on February 4, you were just showing me that you knew your legal claim was on the ropes, so you were desperate to avoid the merits .

What good did it do you?

SNIP

In the meantime, can explain your ability to represent the party in this matter without engaging in unauthorized practice of law.
